

B

margie carpenter
World History
Description of Heaven

The sun shines all the time in Heaven. It is the most beautiful place imaginable beyond the universe. It is a mixture between the glories of summer and autumn. It is always warm and pleasant and the wind blows gently as the trees sway along with it. The buds on the trees are always in blossom with bright colors. The grass is knee high, and everyone loves to walk ~~in~~ through it.

Everyone is free to do as they wish. There are no burdens such as on earth. Everyone is carefree, without a worry. Time doesn't mean anything, for everyone has eternal time in heaven. There is no need for disciplinary systems, for everyone in heaven is good and kind. There are no such things as poverty or pollution. Everyone laughs and is jovial all day long.

There is singing always. Angels are everywhere singing out their joys of this life. The songs are beautiful and everyone stops what they are doing to listen. The angels are the most praised among everything. They are beautiful and extraordinary and do good things for everyone. They never refuse a request. They come ~~a~~ sit with people to talk and sing.

God is always there to talk to. He looks at everyone equally as he does on earth but spends much more time for his people in heaven. He is highly respected by everyone. Heaven is a wonderland, nothing like the life on earth with everyday problems and worries.