

Online Course: The Finance of Retirement

I just signed up for this free, online 8-week class taught by a well-known Stanford professor, Josh Rauh, and it looks like it's going to be excellent. The course claims to review all areas of retirement planning and investing, so if anyone is truly interested in committing some time to understanding these concepts better, this might be just the ticket. I anticipate this will be a good review of concepts I use every day.

I have read about, but have never taken a real online class before, so this will be my first. If anyone else is interested, here is the link for you to sign up.

The class started THIS WEEK, but the videos are posted so you can listen on your own schedule.
